Brent Loewenstein

Magician

Brent Loewenstein, unlike most successful magicians, is self-taught. So well self-taught, in fact, he is the official magician of the St. Louis Cardinals. Loewenstein is also the Museum Magician for the City Museum of St. Louis.

Loewenstein has been practicing his craft professionally for more than 17 years. Starting to master the mysteries of magic in grammar school, Loewenstein, by his late teens, was performing regularly at corporate events. When he began to incorporate business messages in his performance, demand for his skills grew and his engagement calendar began to fill, quickly. From Anheuser-Busch to Kraft Foods, Loewenstein became a huge attraction at trade show exhibits and he was not yet 20 years old.

By age 25 Loewenstein was performing large-scale illusions in exhibition halls and corporate meeting venues around the country. Corporate events have become Loewenstein's specialty; from trade show exhibits to sales meetings; from hospitality suites to the private estates of the captains of industry, Loewenstein captivates and confounds his audiences.

Loewenstein's sophisticated style and masterful abilities have equipped him to design a unique presentation tailored to the needs of the client, strategically balancing a blend of product or service, education and entertainment. Trade show passersby become potential customers in the time it takes Loewenstein to make an object disappear before their very eyes. His magic captures your audience's attention and becomes the conduit for your message. While gasping in disbelief at his skill Loewenstein is making your message the centerpiece of his performance. Incorporating logos, services, products and key messages into his show assures you that your message is coming across loud and clear or soft and subtle depending upon the your needs. Either way, the message gets through and gets to your audience.

Accustomed to traveling, Loewenstein has criss-crossed the United States fulfilling the needs of such corporate behemoths as Coca-Cola, United Van Lines, Purina Mills, Bayer Pharmaceuticals, Sherwin Williams and Johnson & Johnson, to name only a few. A strong relationship with many of these clients has Loewenstein booking key events as far in advance as three years.

The difference between simply filling time for your audience and truly blowing them away is Master Magician Brent Loewenstein.
